“ I met Alvin about 2yrs ago. He always had something to say that was worth listening to and held himself in a way that stood out to me. I gave him the nickname "pocketbook" because he had mentioned a few times how much he disliked carrying a cell phone with him... and he always had this little notebook in his front pocket or elsewhere on him. I appreciated his ever cycling sense of style too One day he'd be dressed in plaid button up and plain jeans; and the next day he'd be wearing a Nine Inch Nails T-shirt with cut off jean shorts. He had real character. We hadn't crossed paths in a while but... I'm glad that I was able to know him for the short time that I did.

I will miss Alvin. He was an important part of my recovery for many years. His stories about his German wife were hilarious. I have a great deal of respect for Alvin.

Al always gave the best advice from gardening to providing clarity in serious situations. My favorite words of wisdom from him, "Jennifer, don't be hasty." As our neighbor and friend for several years, Al was always there for my husband and I. Great memories sharing conversations over the fence, running into him at the gas station (of course he was buying a scratch off) or local grocery store. I know my husband will cherish the memories of golfing together. He will be missed by many. I can picture Lori meeting him at the gates with an amazing German dish.
