“ We became friends day one of meeting each other. Back in the day we were thick as thieves. I have so many memories of us driving around in Charlies truck or your mom's car listening to music. Or hanging out at your house with your grandparents. One of my favorites is when AcDc back in black came out and we spent the night in the camper listening to it over and over again until we memorized every song. The one you and Lynda remember is when we were cleaning your bedroom. Lynda and you started arguing while I was wiping down the rocking chair. I was intensely into it trying to avoid said argument. You both realized how vigorously I was dusting it and began laughing so hard. End of argument! I know your not in any pain now, but this sucks. Godspeed my friend RIH.
