“ Rocky was a strong man. Stronger than even he realized. A perfect example of the hurdles a person can cross when you have an amazing, strong family behind you. I am proud to call the Murray family my wonderful friends and extended family. I am so sorry for your loss. I believe Josh needed his Grandpa to walk beside him. I know one thing for sure- they are having a lot more fun in heaven now & it's likely that heaven will never be the same. Love you Murray's!

“ My brother, My friend,
I am proud of my brother Rocky for having the strength and the courage to turn his life around. I know firsthand it was not easy. Leaving Rocky in Oklahoma was the hardest thing I have done. When Rocky returned, it was all up hill. He accomplished so much, including remarrying Carol the love of his life.
I will forever remember Rocky's love for family, his good heart, playfulness, our long talks, that he always made time for me and all he taught me. Although most was left handed and I never really got the hang of a left handed piggin' string.
My heart is broken beyond description that I will not have him in my life.
I thank God Rocky's suffering from that dreadful cancer is over.
Rest in peace my brother. Thank you for all the good times.
We Love You

Rae, I can understand your pain and hurt. It's so hard to let go of someone you love so much. Every day I think of my sister and best friend, Deb. I sometimes forget for a split second she is gone and it makes my heart joyful. I think of Dan too and wish it could have been different but we connected and it's ok. Do whatever you need to make yourself feel better. I wish I could come down for the picnic. If I was still in Michigan I would be there for sure. Take care of yourself and your Mom. Love, Pamela

Today it has been one month since Rocky joined Josh, Dad and so many other loved ones. I think about him all the time . The 20 days since his birthday haven't been the same without him here to share the same age with me. I miss him so much but am so glad he doesn't have to suffer anymore. Pray for those you left behind until we meet you again, Rocky. I love you, brother. Dale
