“ I knew Floyd during the last six months of his life while in assisted living care. Although he could not communicate verbally, he could show his emotions with a slight look on his face that told us he was smiling, or flash the peace sign as a "hello". He loved a good joke or some good natured poking around...when he had tears in his eyes, we knew then that he was laughing heartily inside. We will miss presence and keep him with us with an occasional peace sign instead of "hello"! RIP Floyd

“ I used to hang around with Floyd and a number of other characters at the old "Art's Dari-Delight" on East Court St. many years ago - early 1960's. Floyd was an interesting guy - smart, cool, and a quick sense of humor; he was always coming out with some 'off the wall' project or another. Fact is, I was just thinking of Floyd last night (the day after he passed). - Eerie.....
