“ Dear Jeanne M. Chick, we never got to meet in person and I am writing this with tears streaming down my face. We met many years ago when I lived in Texas, on a social media platform and we hit it off. Having moved to Illinois, I looked forward to meeting you as you were always a ray of positivity and so the yellow candle represents the sunshine you always were to me. I now understand why the communication began to become sparse. Remember when I checked in on you to see if you were okay? I understand now and I hope to still meet you one day. I am so very sorry this happened to you. Thank you for sharing your thoughtfulness, your virtual friendship, your beautiful baby granddaughters and for ALWAYS showing grace. I have missed you and my only saving grace is that you no longer suffer. REST EASY now, my beautiful friend. With love & fond memories of you, Carol McQueen

“ Mom, I love you! Thank you for the gift of life you gave to me! I will miss you and I'm so happy that you were able to give me what you could in life! I will never forget the words that you would always tell me, "Eric, you are the spit from my mouth." I truly am, lol.

“Jeanne was my sister, my Irish twin. As kids, we were treated like twins! She taught me how to read when I struggled to learn. Jeanne had a big heart and shared what she had with those without. I will miss our inside jokes and conversations about life. I will think of you every time an Elton John song plays on my radio. I love you, forever
